The CNM conference, organized by “Associazione Italiana di Tecnica Navale” (ATENA), is one of the major Italian scientific events on maritime and nautical culture.

The conference will take place in two days, November 28th and 29th 2024, covering all the conceptual and theoretical aspects connected to the research in engineering, history, architecture, economic, and social sciences fields. After the great success of the previous three editions, about 100 contributions are expected which will be organized in parallel sessions by topic.

The CNM 2024 conference will be held in Venice, with the aim of promoting the dialogue between scholars, professionals, and those who are involved, with their particular skills, in research, development, and enhancement of sea culture.

- Alberto Moroso (ATENA President) – Chairman
- Vittorio Bucci (University of Trieste) – Co-chairman
- Luca Braidotti (University of Trieste) – Co-chairman
- Serena Bertagna (University of Trieste) – Conference Secretary
- Luca Ambrosio (ATENA Friuli Venezia Giulia) – Conference Accountant
- Walter Prendin (ATENA Veneto)
- Andrea Galuppo (ATENA Veneto)
- Riccardo Baldini (ATENA Ravenna-Emilia Romagna)
- Bruno Della Loggia (ATENA Lombardia)
- Maria Cristina Pedicchio (mareFVG - iNEST)

- Refitting and conservation of nautical marine and maritime heritage

Instructions

An international scientific Committee, representative of international academic and cultural institutions, will review the abstracts and full-length papers assuring the scientific quality of the conference.

Professors Alberto Marinò and Vittorio Bucci (University of Trieste) have been engaged to chair the CNM 2024 Conference Scientific Committee.

The abstract (max 300 words) can be composed in either English or Italian language. After the approval, the contributors will provide the full-length paper to be presented during the conference. Moreover, only for English-language contributions, a full-length paper (max 10 pages) can be submitted to be included in the conference proceedings and indexed by SCOPUS as conference series in Progress in Marine Science and Technology.
